Pierre Moncuit

Le Mesnil-sur-Oger, Champagne

Champagne Pierre Moncuit is based in the superb Côte des Blancs village of Le Mesnil-sur-Oger. It is in this famed Grand Cru where the family owns 15 hectares of vines. Today, the estate is under the direction of Pierre’s daughter, Nicole, and her brother Yves. Champagne Pierre Moncuit is a Blanc de Blancs house par excellence, producing several distinct cuvées: Cuvée Hugues de Coulmet from holdings in Sézanne, Brut Rosé made from Le Mesnil Chardonnay and Ambonnay Pinot Noir, as well as Moncuit Brut and Extra Brut (made especially for Polaner), both hailing from the Grand Cru of Mesnil-sur-Oger. These are classic, racy Blanc de Blancs from one of Champagne’s finest villages.

Moutard

Buxeuil, Champagne

The families of Champagne Moutard-Diligent have been living in the village of Buxeuil since the mid-17th century and have a long tradition of both grape growing and wine production. Located in the Côte des Bar, the vineyard soils are made up of clay and limestone, lending a good depth of fruit with fine underlying minerality. The wines are vinified in a traditional manner and emerge from the cellars with lovely aromas and red fruit tones, with a supple texture and lingering finish. Champagnes are cellar-aged for at least three years for non-vintage wines, and up to ten to fifteen years for vintage wines. Moutard also makes a small cuvée called “6 Cépages,” made of equal parts Chardonnay, Pinot Noir, Pinot Meunier, plus the rare Champagne varieties of Arbane, Petit Meslier, and Pinot Blanc; it is aged in neutral wood.

Gatinois

Äy, Champagne

The boutique Champagne house of Gatinois is located in the lovely village of Äy in the Vallée de la Marne. Äy is one of the most important villages in all of Champagne. Its south-facing slopes and limestone soils give the wines both power and freshness, and make it one of the very top sources for Pinot Noir in the region. In fact, the vineyards are all ranked as Grand Cru. Today, Louis Gatinois oversees about 7 hectares of family-owned vineyards in Äy. The family continues to sell a portion of their crop to the Grande Marques, particularly Bollinger, but with each passing year they are bottling more of their own production. They are very much the Champenois traditionalists (with family dating back 11 generations as vigneron in the region!), and have spoken out repeatedly about the potential pitfalls of using new oak in the fermentation and élevage of Champagne. The still wines are all fermented and aged in tank.

Collovray & Terrier

Languedoc, France

Jean-Luc Terrier and Christian Collovray were childhood friends from the village of Davayé in the Mâcon and today they are the owners of Domaine des Deux Roches. They have also branched out beyond the reaches of the Mâcon to the 125 acre Domaine Antugnac, located 50 kilometers south of Carcassonne in the foothills of the Pyrenées. With a slightly cooler climate and Chardonnay vines averaging 30 years of age, Antugnac produces magnificent value wines with finesse and crisp acidity. The domaine's Pinot Noir vines are up to 35 years of age. The wine from these vines is aged 8-10 months in barrel and produces a lovely, silky Pinot Noir with beautiful persistence. Jean-Luc and Christian also produce wines in the Mâcon under Bourcier-Martinot, label which is made a selection of some of the top Mâcon AOC vineyards surrounding Saint-Véran and Pouilly-Fuissé.

Goisot

Saint Bris, Burgundy

Certified Biodynamic

From an historic perspective, Domaine Goisot could really be thought of as a fine Chablis estate. But history has not been particularly kind to the region, as Saint Bris was removed from the Chablis appellation after phylloxera ripped through the area in the late nineteenth century. Jean-Hughes Goisot and his wife Ghislaine, along with their son Guilhem, are tireless workers and perfectionists in the village of Saint-Bris. This terroir, which shares the famous chalky soil and the cool northerly climate that is typical of its close neighbor Chablis, gives the wines a very distinctive character: more refined, firmer, more mineral, and often more thirst quenching than wines from farther south in Burgundy. The Goisots plant all of their Sauvignon vines on the cooler north-facing slopes on extremely chalky Kimmeridgian soil (the great classic soil of Chablis). The estate is certified biodynamic and is reputed as one of the leaders in sustainable farming in the region.

Isabelle & Denis Pommier

Chablis, Burgundy

Practicing Organic (in conversion)

The estate of Isabelle and Denis Pommier was founded in 1990 when the Pommiers, a young couple at the time, took over two hectares of family land in the village of Poinchy in order to produce their own wine. The estate now spans 16 hectares of vineyards with appellations ranging from Petit Chablis all the way up to three Chablis Premiers Crus including Fourchaume, Côte de Lechet and Troesmes (part of Beauroy). Since the beginning, there has always been a strong respect for the land and unique terroir of the region. Emboldened by the qualitative gains resulting from plowing the soils and working more naturally in the vineyards, the Pommiers are now fully organic in their Premier Crus and in conversion for the rest of the holdings. The wines from this area tend to be ever so slightly more generous on the palate in terms of power and amplitude, but with a clear line of briny mineral and acid cut that screams “Chablis”, unmistakably.

Antoine Sunier

Régnié-Durette, Beaujolais

Practicing Organic

There is another Sunier on the Bojo block! Antoine grew up with his older brother Julien in Dijon, but he took a bit longer to be bitten by the wine bug. In 2012 Antoine began his studies in Beaune and then did a stint with Jean-Paul Lapalu where he learned natural viticulture and winemaking techniques. After much searching, he found compelling vineyards in two mid-altitude Crus: 60 year old vines in the organically farmed lieu-dit of Croix de Chevre in the Grand Cras climat in Morgon, as well as 45 year old vines in the Régnié lieu-dits of Les Forchets, le Potet and Montmerond. The wines undergo carbonic maceration and 8 months of aging in used Burgundy barrels and sulfur isn’t incorporated until the bottling. As the Wine Advocate’s Neal Martin put it, “Tasting Antoine’s trio, the influence of both Lapalu and his brother is clear. These are fresh, natural, vibrant wines that adhere to traditional Beaujolais...If that augurs what’s to come, you’d better add another Sunier to your Beaujolais wants list.”

Julien Sunier

Avénas, Beaujolais

Practicing Organic (in conversion)

After working for Christophe Roumier in Chambolle, Dijon native Julien Sunier spent his early twenties globe-trotting. Upon return to his native Burgundy, he worked alongside winemakers Nicolas Potel in Nuits Saint-Georges and Jean-Claude Rateau in Beaune, where he solidified a passion for organic and biodynamic viticulture. He then set his eyes on Beaujolais and managed a large negociant where he worked with all of the 10 Cru Beaujolais villages. In 2008, he secured three hectares of densely planted, old-vine, hilltop parcels in the Cru villages of Fleurie, Morgon and Régnié. He is currently working to convert all of the vineyards to organic viticulture. Harvesting entirely by hand, Julien does whole cluster, indigenous yeast fermentations in concrete vats at low temperatures. The wines are then aged for up to 11 months in 3 - 9 year old Burgundy barrels that he inherits from his friend Christophe Roumier. The resulting wines are exceptionally pure, elegant and without artifice.

Domaine Pignier

Jura, France

Certified Biodynamic

Domaine Pignier is an estate steeped in history dating back to the 13th century when Calthusian monks first started making wine in the village of Montaigu. Today, the estate is run by siblings, Jean-Etienne, Antoine and Marie Florence Pignier, who split the responsibilities of the winery. Montaigu is located about 40 km south of Arbois, and is part of the Côtes de Jura appellation. The vineyards at Domaine Pignier are unique in that they are the only plantings in the village. This provides them with a privileged and unobstructed ability to practice their Biodynamic methods without the influence of other surrounding vineyards. The vines also co-mingle with other plants and animals to create an environment of true biodiversity. The Pigniers are strongly rooted in Biodynamics – certified by both Demeter and Ecocert - and are one of the few properties to grow, dry and prepare the majority of all of their BD preps and tisanes at the estate, using rain water collected by large underground cisterns.

Antoine Lienhardt

Comblanchien, Burgundy

Antoine Lienhardt is clearly a rising star and a humble overachiever in the appellation of Côte de Nuits-Villages. He began his project with the 2011 vintage when he took over 4.2 Hectares of vineyards planted by Antoine's grandfather in the 1960s. He truly believes in his terroirs and views the vineyards of Comblanchien as being hugely undervalued. He is convinced that if they were to ever re-classify the hierarchy of Burgundy, there would certainly be Premier Cru if not Grand Cru vineyards amongst the village's choicest sectors. In the vineyards, pruning is severe and great attention is paid to harvest fruit that is physiologically ripe but also maintains an energy and vibrancy. The wines age in barrel for 12 months, and are bottled to capture the purity and exuberance of the fruit. We are captivated by the drive and energy in the wines and are thrilled to be bringing them to our market.

Anne & Herve Sigaut

Chambolle-Musigny, Burgundy

This 7 hectares family estate has been in existence for four generations is currently run by the amiable, low-key couple, Anne and Hervé Sigaut. Because they don't own any Grand Cru vineyards, they have remained “under-the-radar” in a village that certainly doesn't lack for anointed stars. The range of premiers crus is diverse and first rate, including Fuées, Chatelots, Noirots and Sentiers, and many boast 50-60+ year old vines. Like their understated personalities and attitudes, the Sigauts prefer to make wines on the fine and delicate side, that caress rather than clobber. In the cellar, the grapes are de-stemmed, fermented with indigenous yeasts, and then age for 12-15 months in barrel, 10-30% of which is new depending on the cuvée. They scream Chambolle terroir, with fine, elegant and floral aromas and flavors, ethereal, energetic textures, and wonderful chalky/mineral tannins that dance over your palate like a ballerina in silk.

Duroché

Gevrey, Burgundy

Domaine Duroché is a fine example of the next generation taking the reins and infusing newfound energy and dedication to a family-owned winery. Pierre Duroché started in 2005 alongside his father, and is now fully at the helm and bringing a new life to this under-the-radar producer in Gevrey-Chambertin. The Duroché holdings encompass 8.25 ha, all in the village of Gevrey-Chambertin. Moving up the ladder from Bourgogne Rouge and their lieu-dit “Champ” in the northern part of the appellation, the Durochés have small holdings in Lavaut St Jacques and Champeaux as well as the four Grand Crus of Charmes, Griottes, Latricières and Clos de Bèze. The style here is about understated power and elegance with fine-grained tannins and an earthy, briny, mineral core that is a hallmark of the Gevrey terroir. The wines are forward enough to drink fairly well on release, but also have the requisite structure to age as well. Pierre Duroché is clearly a young star on the rise!

Domaine du Haut Bourg

Muscadet, France

Located southeast of Nantes in the heart of the Muscadet appellation “Côte de Grandlieu”, the Domaine du Haut Bourg was built by four generations of winegrowers. The first vine was planted in 1945 and today brothers Hervé and Nicolas Choblet run their 40 hectares estate together. The Lac de Grandlieu is the largest natural lake in Europe and creates a distinct microclimate characterized by moderated temperatures in winter, and overall, a lower temperature gradient between day and night. This phenomenon allows an earlier harvest that helps retain the generous acids typical of Muscadet. The sun’s daily heat is soaked up, which enables the wine crop to ripen a little longer while avoiding frost. The vines average 30 years of age, with some vines as old as 60 years. The Choblet brothers plant densely at 7,000 vines per hectare and are committed to farming sustainably. These are classic Muscadets—bracing, salty, racy, and seriously lip-smacking.

Foucher-Lebrun & Chais St Laurent

Loire Valley, France

Foucher-Lebrun is a “Petit Négociant” founded in 1921 specializing in wines from the Loire Valley. The company’s mission is to produce excellent expressions of the classic appellations in the Loire region through careful vineyard selection, vinification and proper ageing. Today, Parisian wine broker Jean Mounard passionately oversees the selection process for the winery. With his deep experience tasting the great wines of the world (he deals regularly in such luminaries as DRC, Mouton, Domaine Leflaive, etc), as well as his contacts among top producers in the Loire, he has significantly raised the bar in terms of the quality of these value-wines. By tapping into connections at some better quality cellars in the region, Foucher-Lebrun is able to create wines that display a real sense of their underlying appellations and are made with a balance and delineation rarely found in wines at this price point.

Sylvain Bailly

Sancerre, Loire

The Bailly family has been making wine in Sancerre since the 1700s. Sylvain's son Jacques has been at the helm since the late 1980s and is now joined by his daughter, Sonia. The Bailly estate covers 12 hectares and is spread over 23 separate parcels. The vineyards are located mostly in and around the village of Bué with holdings in the famous vineyards of Chêne Marchand, Grand Chemarin, le Château and les Chasseignes. This village is prized for its white, chalky soils that give the Bailly wines a pronounced minerality and delineation. In addition to their delicious and always reliable Sancerres, the Bailly family also makes a lovely, well-priced Quincy.

Domaine des Vieux Pruniers

Sancerre, Loire

Domaine des Vieux Pruniers is situated a mere 2.5 miles from Sancerre, in the village of Bué, known for its chalky soils and steep, amphitheater-like vineyards, some approaching 65° gradients. To-day, Christian Thirot-Fournier and his wife tend to their roughly 10 hectares of vines, divided between two varieties: 7 hectares of Sauvignon Blanc planted to chalky limestone soils and 3 hectares of Pinot Noir grown on clay-limestone. Together they raise the wine from vine to bottle. They are moving towards a more “sustainable” viticultural regime, which is an admirable commitment in such an inhospitable growing climate. The wine is 100% tank-fermented. After several months aging on its fine lees, it is fined, filtered and bottled at the domaine. This is a clear, mineral, citrusy, racy style of Sancerre.

Boulay

Chavignol, Loire
Practicing Organic

Gerard Boulay can trace his family history in Chavignol back to 1380. At the time, the Clos de Beaujeu was already known for the quality of its white wine – supplying white wine to the Cathedral of Bourges – which is remarkable since Sancerre was a red wine producing area until after phylloxera. Eight of nine hectares lie on the Kimmeridgian slopes of Chavignol. Boulay works the soils manually, farms organically and encourages biodiversity in the vines. The wines ferment naturally with no added yeast and minimal amounts of SO2. Over the last 10 years, the domaine’s reputation has skyrocketed and demand has far surpassed supply. With their purity, delineation, fruit concentration as well as their ability to age gracefully, these wines are undeniably among the best in the appellation.

François Chidaine

Montlouis, Loire
Certified Biodynamic

François Chidaine is not only the quality leader in Montlouis, but also one of the greatest estates in all of the Loire. Chidaine is a champion of the biodynamic movement and has prestigious holdings in both Montlouis and Vouvray, particularly the famous Clos Baudoin which François bought from Prince Poniatoski. His 16 hectares in Montlouis are comprised of eight distinct plots. Unlike many of his peers, Francois does not indicate dryness levels on his wines. Over time, one learns that Tuffeaux is always vinified demi-sec and Clos du Brueil is always dry. The array of top quality Chenin Blanc across both appellations makes Domaine Francois Chidaine one of the most compelling estates in the region. Francois’ wines are classically balanced with exceptional life and richness of fruit. They are serious, yet charming...like the man himself!

Domaine Aux Moines

Savennières, Loire

Certified Organic

The Domaine aux Moines estate was founded in 1981, though there are records of vineyards planted in the region since the middle ages when the monks (“moines” in French) from the Abbaye de St Nicolas tended vines. It is now run by the energetic mother and daughter team of Monique and Tessa Laroche. The 9.6 hectares of Chenin Blanc are all planted on south and southwest facing hillsides overlooking the Loire River in the sub-appellation of "Savennières - Roche Aux Moines", adjacent to the famed Coulée de Serrant. The soils in the area are predominantly schist with some sandstone and clay. They tend to produce a flinty, drier style Chenin Blanc that can age for a long time, which is certainly the case for this estate. The Laroche ladies employ a natural approach in their vineyard work and cellar practices, and full organic certification will be achieved in the 2014 vintage. The wines are all fermented with indigenous yeasts, and aged in a combination of tank and cask. The winery also stocks vintages for sale back almost 20 years!

Moulin Touchais

Coteaux du Layon, Loire

This is an historic property and a true hidden gem! The Touchais family has owned vineyards and produced Coteaux-du-Layon wines since the 18th century. While the domaine produces a great number of wines from their 145 hectares of vineyards, the Coteaux du Layon accounts for less than 10% of their production. Their winemaking today is deeply rooted in these traditional techniques. The sweet Chenin Blancs they produce are more a result of extremely ripe grapes and natural drying on the vine, called passerillage, rather than desiccation due to botrytis. Following the local tradition, the wine is fermented in cement vats and bottled early the following spring. The bottles are then aged in the estate’s cellar for at least 10 years prior to being released. The wines have an amazing track record for longevity and can last 50-100 years in the great vintages. We are gifted with access to an array of vintages, dating back to the early 1970s. Not only are these memorable wines a joy to follow throughout their evolution, they are exceptionally well priced for their pedigree.

Château du Hureau

Saumur-Champigny, Loire

Certified Organic

Château du Hureau is considered one of the top producers in Saumur-Champigny. Over the past few years, they have moved in a more natural direction in their viticulture, and have obtained official certification as of the 2014 vintage. They also hand-harvest and use natural yeasts on all their cuvées. These are dark, intense and sappy Cabernet Francs, with plenty of lovely fruit, balanced by acidity and minerality from the underlying tuffe soils.

Domaine de Pajot

Gascogne, France

Certified Organic

Domaine de Pajot is situated on the hills overlooking Eauze, the small town that is the capital of Armagnac, a region in Gascogne famous for its “eau-de vie”. Though grape-growing is the domaine’s focus, proprietor Damien Barreau also grows hazelnut trees on the 80-acre estate. The domaine is certified organic and their vines benefit from excellent soil, sun exposure and altitude. Damien and his team tend vines that grow on gently rolling hillsides composed of sand and fine silt soils. There they grow the white grapes of Colombar, Ugni-Blanc, Gros-Manseng and Sauvignon Blanc (which make up the Quatre Cépages Cuvée), as well as Merlot and Cabernet Sauvignon. The white blend is a crisp, aromatically expressive wine that pleases year in and year out.

Isle Saint-Pierre

Rhône, France

Practicing Organic

We discovered the Isle Saint Pierre wines through our friends Karina and Guillaume Lefèvre of Domaine du Sulauze. Isle Saint-Pierre is a small island in the middle of the Rhône river, located 25km south of Arles and 15km away from the Mediterranean in the heart of the Camargue region. In 1927, Parisian wine merchant Pierre Chassaing founded Domaine Isle Saint-Pierre and devoted himself to cultivating vines and raising sheep. The proximity to the water means that the island enjoys a coastal climate (with a cooling influence from the nearby bodies of water) and deep, well draining sedimentary soils comprised of sand and silt. For red wines as well as for the rosé, the main varieties are Merlot, Cabernet Franc, Petit Verdot and Arinarnoa (a cross between merlot and petit verdot). The white wines are made from Chardonnay, Sauvignon and Muscat. Although the Isle Saint-Pierre wines come from the very southern stretches of France, they display wonderful freshness and aromatic appeal. They are our answer to lively, vibrant quaffers that over deliver at every turn.

Mas des Brousses

Languedoc, France

Practicing Organic

Located in the hills above the fertile Herault river valley, just south of Pic St. Loup, is the village of Puechabon where Xavier Peyraud, grandson of Lulu and Lucien Peyraud of the famed Domaine Tempier in Bandol, together with his wife Geraldine Combes, oversees 20 acres of family vineyards. The vineyards are planted to Grenache, Syrah, Merlot and Cabernet Sauvignon, along with Mourvedre from cuttings originating from Domaine Tempier. The young couple handles every aspect of viticulture and winemaking. They work manually in the vineyards, have never used pesticides or herbicides, and view plowing as a vital part of their commitment to natural viticulture. The wines are bottled unfiltered to capture the intense fruit and garrigue aromas that the terroir has to offer. These are powerful wines with a rusticity that is coupled with balance and elegance.

Mas de Daumas Gassac

Languedoc, France

Practicing Organic

For many, this estate needs no introduction. Often referred to as the Grand Cru of the Midi (South of France), the Mas de Daumas Gassac top-tier wines have reached international cult status for their unusual blends and their potential for long-term aging. Located in the majestic Gassac Valley, the estate benefits from the cool microclimate derived from the Gassac River, several natural springs (from which the Guibert family drinks), and the influence of the nearby mountains. The soil that dominates the valley is a rare and still unexplained red, powder-fine glacial soil, which is strikingly similar to that found in the prime areas of Burgundy. This combination of characteristics is quite unique in Southern France and enabled the family to plant 40 different grape varieties in the valley. In the 1990s, the Guibert family began producing a line of aromatic, full flavored wines under the Moulin de Gassac label.

Domaine de Piaugier

Rhône, France

Sophie and Jean-Marc Autran cultivate 3.5 hectares within the Gigondas AOC, 12.5 hectares in the Sablet AOC, and 14 hectares of Côtes du Rhône vineyards. For a village that takes its name from the French word for sand (Sablet), the Autran’s also have a uniquely high percentage of clay in their vineyards, which they believe gives power and concentration to their wines. A further advantage is that the vines themselves, which are 20 – 40 years old, and reaching their prime. The grapes are hand-harvested and fermented with indigenous yeasts in concrete tanks. The wines are aged in a combination of concrete tanks, as well as a mixture of small and large barrels (mostly used wood). Jean-David

Rhône, France

Certified Organic

Domaine Jean-David is a small estate located in Seguret in the Côtes-du-Rhône Villages appellation. They are strong believers in organic viticulture and have been certified organic for years. There have never been chemical additives used in their vineyards.

This 17 hectares estate is run by the amicable couple, Jean and Martine David. The work in the vineyards is all done by hand, with respect for the environment as well as the natural rhythm of the seasons. There is an effort to create a biodiversity in the vineyards with various flora and fauna interplanted with the vines. The soils are plowed, and all pruning and harvesting is done by hand. The estate also has a good number of old vine parcels spread throughout the village of Seguret, some of which are classified in Côtes-du-Rhône and some in Côtes-du-Rhône Villages.

Vignobles Mayard

Rhône, France

This 5th generation estate is run by two sisters, Françoise and Béatrice Mayard. Their 40 separate parcels are scattered throughout the appellation, with the largest pieces in the southern part of the appellation and the famed, northeastern sub-zone of “La Crau”. The diversity of soils and terroirs gives them the opportunity to blend and create a “best of vintage” offering for each of their three cuvées of Châteauneuf. We offer their superbly-drinking “Clos du Calvaire”, and their 80-100 year old-vine wine named “La Crau de Ma Mère.” Robert Parker wrote: “These consistently reliable Châteauneuf-du-Papes are always representative of Provence, and are made in a rich, earthy, peppery, fruity style with plenty of body as well as Châteauneuf-du-Pape typicity. Not generally wines to lay away, rather, they are to consume during their first 10-12 years of life, with the only exception being certain vintages of the top cuvée, La Crau de Ma Mère.”

Mourre Du Tendre

Rhône, France

Practicing Organic

Château du Mourre du Tendre is located in the village of Courthézon where they craft ultra-traditional wines from the appellations of Châteauneuf-du-Pape, Côtes-du-Rhône and Côte-du-Rhône Villages. The winery’s name, “Mourre du Tendre”, comes from a Provençale dialect meaning “small hill of love”. The family estate contains high percentage of old vine Grenache, mostly 60-100+ years of age. The bunches are not de-stemmed, and fermentations occur naturally with indigenous yeasts and long macerations. In the style of Henri Bonneau, the wines are aged for a minimum of 3½ to 4 years in concrete tanks, then bottled without filtration prior to release. The resulting wines are deep, gutsy and pure.

Châteaux d'Arveyres & Cantelaudette

Bordeaux, France

A refuge for monks in the 16th century, Château d'Arveyres (previously known as Château Fantin) vines have been in the Houbaer family since 1890. Current owner Jean-Michel Chatelier is the great-grandson on the maternal side of the family. On the steep slopes overlooking the Dordogne River, the vineyard of Château d'Arveyres faces south and south-east, towards the medieval town of Saint-Emilion. The slopes and sandy soils provide good drainage and keep the soil from compacting. A good, sunny exposure and the beneficial influence of the Dordogne River ensure that the grapes ripen evenly. Chatelier also owns an estate in the satellite region of Graves des Veyres called Château Cantelaudette. The area near the village of Veyres is known for its gravelly soils which impart a fine minerality to the wines (“Baby Graves”).

Châteaux Lamothe & Manos

Bordeaux, France

Located southwest of Bordeaux in the commune of Haux, Château Lamothe has crafted estate-bottled wine since the 16th century. The estate spans 80 hectares of clay and limestone slopes on the Right Bank, much of which contributes to their well-established Bordeaux Blanc comprised of 40% Sauvignon Blanc, 40% Semillon and 20% Muscadelle. The uniquely high percentage of Muscadelle accounts for the intensely aromatic profile of this stellar value. In addition to both reds, which are a traditional blend of Merlot, Cabernet Sauvignon and Cabernet Franc, the Néel-Chombart family produces a vibrant and succulent dessert wine from the appellation of Cadillac at their neighboring estate, Château Manos. We are thrilled to welcome Château Lamothe and Château Manos to our portfolio of lauded Bordeaux growers.

Châteaux Sainte-Marie & Péyredon

Bordeaux, France

Certified Organic

Set right in the heart of the Entre-Deux-Mers region, Chateau Sainte Marie was established in 1956. The south-facing vineyards stretch over two very sunny hilltops which are among the highest points in the Gironde region. Dupuch and his son Stéphane have spent considerable energy – to no real avail – trying to convince their colleagues that the future of the appellation will be found through denser vine planting, lower yields and natural vineyard management. They are one of the few estates in Bordeaux to be certified Organic. Marked by freshness, vitality and length, Chateau Sainte Marie wines have become staples and go-to values in our Bordeaux portfolio. Stéphane and his wife recently purchased a small estate in the Haut Médoc named Château Péyredon. Their debut release was 2009.

Domaines Bouyer

Bordeaux, France

In the capable hands of Alexia and Pierre Bouyer, the estates of Clos de la Cure and Chateau Milon represent more than seven generations of viticultural heritage. While the average vine age is 30 years, it is believed that vines were planted on these plateaus in the Middle Ages. The vineyards share the same soil composition as Château Cheval Blanc – gravel and clay with iron-rich deposits – and they are densely planted at 6600-9000 vines per hectare. The Bouyer family is committed to farming ecologically with great respect for the Grand Cru terroir of Clos de la Cure. This Merlot dominated Château Milon Cuvée Caprice is an astonishing value and established itself early on as a crowd-favorite in the appellation of Saint-Emilion.

Fichet

Meursault, Burgundy

Perhaps more than any of his peers, Jean-Philippe Fichet is testing the limits of transparency to find the very soul of Meursault's terroirs. He has studied every square inch of earth and stone in all of his parcels in hopes of making Meursault's purest set of single-climat wines. Even if uneconomical, Fichet would rather produce a very small amount of wine from his best sites than to lose their unique character in a blend. While he has remained under the radar until recently, the wines of Jean-Philippe Fichet today have few rivals for their class in Burgundy, and unmatched in their transparency and expressiveness.

René Rostaing

Rhône, France

Since 1991, René Rostaing has emerged as one of the Northern Rhône's most respected growers. Between 1991 and 1995, he assumed the vineyards of his uncle, the legendary Marius Gentaz, and his father-in-law, Albert Dervieux. From these two traditionalist titans, he also learned to value the noble qualities of classic Côte Rôtie. The wines are made using a good portion of whole clusters and are aged in mostly used demi-muids and barriques.

Perrone

Piedmont, Italy

The Elio Perrone winery, with Stefano Perrone currently at the helm, has steadily risen to the top echelon of Moscato producers. They are benchmark for the region. Their Moscato’s not only have typical pear, peach and floral notes but they also have firm, refreshing acidity and minerality which many other Moscato’s find lacking. Their Moscato’s are sourced from north facing slopes (less sun slows the ripening of the fast-maturing Moscato) and their Barbera’s are sourced from 40-70+ year old vines. Their wines, both the Moscatos as well as the Bigaro (Moscato/Brachetto blend) and their Barbera’s all are marked by a freshness that begs a second glass, if not, second bottle! The winery really proves that when made well, with attention and focus, Moscato can delivery elegance and complexity.

Montepeloso

Tuscany, Italy

Practicing Organic

Tucked away in the hills of Suvereto near Bolgheri on the Tuscan Coast – one of the hottest areas in Tuscany – is the 15-acre Montepeloso estate. The winemaker, Swiss-born Fabio Chiarello, admits about his wine that it’s “easy to produce concentrated wines in such a hot climate...but it’s much harder to achieve elegance and finesse.” In order to take full advantage of the terroir’s potential, he overhauled the vineyards in 1997 – retraining, pruning, and even regrafting many vines. In the cellar, he does relatively short macerations, employs natural yeasts during fermentation, and bottles without filtration.

Bussola

Veneto, Italy

Tommaso Bussola took over his uncle’s Valpolicella estate—with its prized old vineyards in the heart of the Classico zone—in the mid-1980’s. While vineyard work came naturally to him, he experimented relentlessly, and absorbed information and ideas from every source available. With each passing vintage, his wines came to show more polish, finesse, intensity, and personality. By the late nineties, his style had matured, and his wines had become world-famous for their incredible intensity of fruit. Like other top Veneto winemakers, he uses new barrels, but any hint of new wood is hidden by cascades of lush, opulent fruit.

Bernabeleva

Madrid, Spain

Practicing Organic & Biodynamic

Bernabeleva is located in the ancient Celtic hunting grounds marked with stone bears North and West of Madrid. The estate’s vineyards are over 84 years old and planted to Garnacha and Albillo in the best sub zone of the Vinos de Madrid DO known as San Martin de Valdeiglesias. In this location, the soils are very poor – made up of decomposed granite – and at very high altitudes. These heights create very large diurnal temperature shifts and allow for very ripe yet fresh and elegant Garnacha. The vines and wines are looked after with great care by one of the young up and coming winemakers in Spain named Marc Isart Pinos.

In the town of Corullón, Alvaro and Ricardo believe they have found a unique combination of soils, old vines, and a distinctive variety that will yield their own grands crus. Antidoto

Ribera del Duero, Spain

Practicing Organic & Biodynamic

Bertrand Sourdais' goal is to capture the essence of the Soría region by sourcing from the best vineyard sites—many of which date from the time before Phylloxera—and by ultimately managing the viticulture himself. Wherever possible, he employs organic and/or biodynamic methods. Antidoto is Spanish for “antidote”. Bertrand hopes this wine serves as an antidote to the many Ribera del Duero wines that substitute heavy-handed winemaking for a sense of place and variety.

Dominio de Pingus

Ribera Del Duero, Spain

Practicing Organic & Biodynamic

While other Spanish wines have achieved international recognition, Pingus and Flor de Pingus are some of the very few that have joined the ranks of the world’s most coveted wines. Like Coche-Dury’s Corton-Charlemagne, Guigal’s single-vineyard Côte Rôties, or Giacomo Conterno’s Monfortino, Pingus and Flor de Pingus are known and admired wherever great wine is discussed. Like those other esteemed names, they have a quality that is often lacking in today’s “modern” wines—a sense of utter individuality. Flor de Pingus is sourced from 16 different parcels around the village of La Horra. All the vineyards are old and farmed biodynamically. The different plots are fermented separately in oak vats using their wild yeasts. The wine then ages in barrique – mostly used and on occasion only used – for approximately 14 months. The soils here are limestone rich and this gives the wines great structure but also plenty of lift.

Alvaro Palacios

Priorat, Spain

Practicing Organic & Biodynamic

If anyone embodies the promise and spirit of Spain, it is Alvaro Palacios. Along with Peter Sisseck of Dominio de Pingus, Alvaro is widely considered to be making some of the most important Spanish wines in a generation. Here in the Priorat, the soils are friable schist on steep, terraced slopes. The winery is practicing biodynamic and organic, the grapes are harvested by hand and the wines are not filtered. Les Terrasses is one of the most famous of his wines, and starting in 2007, the wine became “Velles Vinyes” or Old Vines only. This move cut the production of Les Terrasses by about 2/3rds and increased the quality of the wine tremendously.

Madeira, Portugal

Vinhos Barbeito was founded in 1946 by Mario Barbeito de Vasconcelos, a wealthy businessman. The firm’s incredible range of old vintages today is due to his foresight as he went around the island buying up large quantities of privately owned wine – some of it dating back to the 18th Century. Today the firm is headed by his grandson Ricardo Freitas who is both the protector of his grandfather’s collection, and also continues to expand it. In addition, Ricardo is making his own Madeiras, becoming both a revolutionary for breaking with some traditions, and at the same time, a press darling for their superb quality.

Bohigas

Fermí Bohigas is a family-owned winery that has roots dating back to the 13th century. The estate is located in the town of Òdena in the River Anoia valley, about 45 minutes west of Barcelona. The current family and their ancestors have been growing grapes and making wines at this location consecutively since 1290. Their first bottling took place in 1870 although it was not until 1978 that the name “Bohigas” appeared on a wine label. Today, the family’s estate, under the guidance of Jordi Casanovas Bohigas, encompasses 300 hectares of which 110 are split between two separate vineyard properties, named “Can Macià” and “Can Batllellé”, both of which have their own cellars. The house style of the Cavas here is fresh and riveting, with fine bubbles and low dosage levels to accentuate the purity of the fruit. The winery also farms organically.

La Val

Rias Baixas, Spain

Bodegas La Val was established in 1985 and was one of the first wineries in Rias Baixas. Unusual for the area, La Val produces its wines solely from their estate grown grapes rather than buying from local growers. They own 150 acres of Albariño most of which are located in the Condado do Tea sub-region. The vineyards are trained in the pergola system which, in this very humid and rainy climate, allows for better air flow and ripening. The particular micro-climate of their main holding in Condado do Tea allows them to be the first winery to open the harvest, which is typically in the first half of September. Jose Maria Ureta, the current winemaker, is extremely well respected in the D.O. and considered to be one of the young up-and-comers.

Lurra

Navarra, Spain

Lurra or “terroir” in Basque comes from the appellation of Navarra in the heart of the Basque Country and sheep country - hence the label! This region is located in the northeast of Spain and lies in between Rioja and the French border. The region is quite large and spans from the areas close to the Atlantic, where it is very cool, to the south, where it is more continental in climate. The Garnacha vineyards for Lurra are from the southern section where it is warmer but also fairly high in altitude about 1,300 feet on average. The soils here are a combination of chalk and clay. The Lurra Garnacha is made very simply in stainless steel and sees no oak aging so that it is a pure expression of its terroir.

Temperamento

Utiel-Requena, Spain

Practicing Organic

Temperamento is made from the Bobal grape grown in Utiel-Requena. The D.O. of Utiel-Requena is located in Valencia in south eastern Spain. This area has a very warm Mediterranean climate, but the vineyards here are moderated by high altitudes. Bobal is the indigenous grape to this area and can be a very challenging variety to grow. Its vigor must be curbed in order to produce quality wines. Bodegas Sierra Norte, which makes Temperamento, has very old vines of Bobal (many exceeding 60 years of age) that it farms organically near the town of Camporrobles.

Hermanos de Peciña

Rioja, Spain

Practicing Organic

Bodegas Hermanos de Peciña is firmly planted in the old school camp. Although the estate was started only in 1992, its founder, Pedro Peciña had worked for over 20 years prior to that as the head agronomist for La Rioja Alta. Their vineyards - many 40 to 60 years old - are actually some of the finest in the appellation as they fall at the foothills of the Sierra Cantabria Mountains at an average of 500 meters, and offer hillside expositions as well as complex and diverse soils. Many of Peciña’s most prized vineyards are also on north facing slopes which Pedro feels helps give the wines good freshness and delineation. The estate comprises 50 hectares, which is fairly small by Rioja standards. All the wines are cask racked every 6 months, with Peciña one of only a few houses that still do the traditional "trasiego" method by hand. Like the best of the traditionalists, the aging regime in both cask and bottle are well beyond what is required by law.

Valdespino

Jerez, Spain

The origins of this historic bodega date back to 1264 when Don Alfonso Valdespino was one of 24 Knights responsible for expelling the Moors from Jerez. As a reward for his efforts the king gave him land grants in the city of Jerez and thus began Bodegas Valdespino. The heart of Valdespino is its vineyards. They are the only sherry house to make a series of wines from a single vineyard. That vineyard, Macharnudo, is one of the “grand crus” of Jerez, located at the highest altitude and on pure Albariza soils (bright white chalk). All Macharnudo wines are fermented with wild yeast in aged oak botas. Valdespino is also one of a few estates that take the solera system to the extreme going way beyond DO minimum regulations for all the categories.

Tratturi

Puglia, Italy

Tratturi is the word for the ancient drovers trails in the countryside of Puglia that shepherds used in the old days to bring their flocks of sheep and other animals down from the mountains in autumn. This countryside of Puglia, specifically the subzone of Salento, is the source of this bold, spicy, and delicious Primitivo. Primitivo is said to be related to the Zinfandel grape which many old Italian immigrants planted in Northern California in the late 19th and early 20th century. The background of the label is made up of Trulli houses, which dot the countryside in Puglia. The wine was aged entirely in tank. Its round, spicy profile is a perfect match for pasta, pizza, or anything off the BBQ.

Fillipi

Veneto, Italy

Certified Organic

Filippi's estate and vineyards are located in Castelserino, in the highest part of the Soave DOC. The property was owned by a noble Tuscan family, the Conti Alberti, from the 1300's to the beginning of the twentieth century. In the beginning of the 1900's they sold the villa and cantina to the Visco family. Filippo Filippi, who runs the estate, represents the current generation of the family and is related to both families – the Visco and the Conti Alberti. He began bottling his own wine in 2003 but his family has been making wine since the Visco family bought the estate from the Alberti. He began farming organically and was certified organic in 2007. Over the years, he's incorporated some of the principles of biodynamic farming as well. The soil in the vineyards is mostly rocky, volcanic clay with parts that are rich in limestone (particularly the Vigne della Bra). The property and vineyards are unique in that there is a rich biodiversity including wooded areas surrounding the vineyards. This is a critical aspect to the estate's practices, as it allows for the vineyards to exist in harmony with the surrounding nature.

Muri-Gries

Alto Adige, Italy

Practicing Organic

In 1845, Benedictine monks coming from the monastery of Muri in Switzerland took over the abandoned Canons Monastery of the Gries (in Italy), and from then on, the monastery was known as Muri-Gries. Since 1947, the Muri-Gries Monastery’s winery has produced wines in the DOC of Alto Adige, which are sold in Italy and abroad. Winemaker Christian Werth was one of the first in the area to focus on Lagrein, restructuring the old vineyards and experimenting in the cellar with fantastic results. They are now considered a benchmark producer of this fascinating, indigenous variety. The wines of this ancient monastery represent intense varietal purity coupled with great value.

In the vineyards, the family is strongly committed to farming organically, a rarity in the region. La Crotta di Vegneron

Valle d'Aoste, Italy

The vineyards at La Crotta are steep, south-facing vineyards pasted to the sides of the mountains that soar above them here in the remote Valle D'Aosta. The vines grow between 450 and 1050 meters in altitude in soils formed from millions of years of glacial runoff. These soils are very mineral and are composed largely of rocks and sand, lending a strong underlying minerality to the wines. The winemaking philosophy is one that respects and showcases the traditional appellations and indigenous grapes. Although there is some barrel-aging employed with some of the wines, new oak is kept to a bare minimum. The grapes are all hand-harvested and the red wines are fermented with natural yeasts to help emphasize their individual expression.

Cantalupo

Piedmont, Italy

Though this winery was only built in 1977, the Arlunno family has been cultivating vineyards in Ghemme, in northern Piedmont, for many generations. The vineyards of Cantalupo are situated in the hills above the town of Ghemme, referred to in Roman times as Agamium. Today, Alberto Arlunno manages this estate, assisted by renowned consulting winemaker Donato Lanati. Ghemme by law must be at least 75% Nebbiolo, known in the region as “Spanna”, but the Arlunno family prefers to highlight the quality of their vineyards by bottling only 100% Nebbiolo wines. The rocky, mineral soils here were formed by the glacial runoff of Monte Rosa, and impart an underlying minerality to the wines. This, combined with traditional Piedmontese winemaking, with relatively long macerations and aging in botti, make for some beautiful and age-worthy Nebbiolo that could easily hold its own with Ghemme’s more “high rent” neighbors further south in the Langhe.

Castello Di Verduno

Practicing Organic

Castello di Verduno is an historic Piedmontese estate that makes classic Barolo and Barbaresco from prime vineyard sites in both appellations. The Verduno vineyards come from Gabriella's side of the family (Burlotto) and the Barbaresco vineyards from Franco's family (which had formerly been the estate Luigi Bianco). Verduno has flown under the radar for many years but recently has been gaining more attention. It was previously most known for the local Pelaverga grape, the deliciously fine, elegant, floral and red-fruited wine from the region, though recently, its Barolo crus have garnered more attention.

The name Roagna has been synonymous with traditional Langhe wine-making for years. Now in the hands of the family’s fourth generation, the winery is run by the dynamic Luca Roagna. While Luca continues to utilize most of the winemaking practices of his father and grandfather (including 50-60+ day macerations), Luca has taken the winery to even greater heights, consistently raising the bar each year. The Barbarescos are mainly from their historic holding in the Paje cru as well as from their tiny parcels in Asili and Montefico. Their Barolo comes from La Pira in Castiglione Falletto where Luca recently finished construction of a new winery where he will vinify his Barolo wines. Castell'in Villa

Tuscany, Italy

This historic winery, run by Coralia Pignatelli della Leonessa is known for producing some of the most traditionally-crafted, age-worthy wines in the appellation. The 298 hectare estate (with a modest 54 hectares of vineyards) sits atop a hill in Castelnuovo Berardenga. Most of its vineyards are on the south facing sides of the hill – with olive groves and forest interspersed throughout. The Chiantis, even the “current” releases, are held back in bottle to give added complexity and refinement. The wines display classic aromas and flavors of dried fruits and flowers, minerals and a dusty/earthy core that is uniquely Tuscan. There is an energy and lift to all the wines with well-integrated acidity and balanced structure.

Veneto, Italy

Practicing Organic & Biodynamic

The Poggiali family, owners of the Fattoria di Felsina winery since the 1960's, are originally from Ravenna in Emilia-Romagna. They have had the intention for some time of having a winery in their native land. That dream was finally realized in 2009 when they bought Podere La Berta in the town of Brisighella.

The vineyards at La Berta are farmed with the same care and attention as those at Fattoria di Felsina. They are farmed with minimal impact. They practice biodynamic farming methods but do not plan to be certified. The soil here is a mix of clay and sand rich in marine deposit. The vineyards sit in a choice position in the foothills of the Appenine Mountains with influence from the Adriatic as well.

The property is composed of 11 farmhouses (podere) of medieval origin, each one characterized by a single vineyard. Unlike most other top estates in the region, Fèlsina's Chianti Classicos as well as their IGT, Fontalloro, are all based on the purity, sanctity and complexity of Sangiovese in mono-uvaggio. Felsina practices biodynamic vineyard management but they do not intend to be certified.

Podere Salicutti is a gem of an estate located in Montalcino and one of the leading figures in the tiny, yet burgeoning “Natural Wine” movement in the Brunello appellation. It is run meticulously by Francesco Leanza who left his career as a chemical engineer in Rome to dedicate himself full-time to Podere Salicutti in 1995. Leanza originally purchased the property in 1990 and immediately began reviving the olive grove and renovating the building on the estate. A few years later, he set out to revive the vineyards, which he had begun replanting in 1994. Today, the winery produces a graceful style of Brunello di Montalcino.

Pian dell’Orino

Pian dell’Orino is located in Montalcino, next door to the Biondi Santi property. The wines come from four different biodynamically farmed vineyards that total 6 hectares. The vineyards are situated in various subzones of the appellation giving them a patchwork of components to blend later to build complexity in the wines. Caroline Pobitzer came to Montalcino from Alto Adige in Northern Italy. Her husband, Jan Hendrik Erbach, was born in Karlsruhe and brought up in Germany. He studied viticulture with a great German master and then at the prestigious Geisenheim Academy. Jan is both an agronomist and an oenologist. After his studies he lived and worked for several years in France, gaining valuable experience before coming to Montalcino and meeting Caroline. Pian dell’Orino has quickly emerged as one of the new superstars of the appellation.

Collestefano

Marche, Italy

Certified Organic

Collestefano was started in 1998 when Fabio Marchionni took over the estate that had been in his family for years. After getting his degree in agriculture, where he did his thesis on Verdicchio di Matelica, he went to Germany to work for Weingut Zähringer. There he learned to work and farm organically with minimal impact to the environment. Then, after a brief stint working in wine bars and restaurants, he took over the family farm with a goal of producing fine, classically rendered Verdicchio di Matelica from organically farmed vineyards (he is now certified). His Verdicchio has been consistent in quality, winning at least two glasses from Gambero Rosso since the 2001 vintage (twice winning three glasses). As with other Verdicchios from the higher elevation subzone of Matelica, the wines have a pronounced minerality and acid structure, and a bit less of the oily and herbal quality found in wines from Jesi.

Ciro Picariello

Campania, Italy

Practicing Organic

Ciro Picariello has quickly become one of the star producers of Fiano di Avellino. He and his wife started their winery in 1997 although their first vintage under their own label was not until 2004. Their 7 hectares of vineyards are located at relatively high elevation in the province of Campania; the vineyards are divided between the villages of Montefredane (1,600 feet above sea level) and Summonte (2,100 feet). The harvest for the Fiano occurs in late October, very late for white wine. The wines are fermented with indigenous yeasts in stainless tanks. The Fiano di Avellino is aged on its fine lees for an extended period between 11-12 months (plus several months more in bottle before release), with the Irpinia Fiano and reds slightly shorter, 7-8 months. Use of SO2 is minimal; the wines are not filtered or fined.

Ocone

Campania, Italy

Certified Organic

The Ocone Estate lies in the province of Benevento in the Campania region of Italy. In this very rocky, mountainous area, some 40 miles east of Naples, Domenico Ocone produces several of Italy’s most original and compelling wines from the local varieties: Aglianico, Coda di Volpe, Falanghina and Greco. They flourish in Ocone’s biodynamically farmed vineyards. The winery is a member of the Italian Association for Organic Farming (AIAB). The only fertilizer used is natural, and no pesticides or additives of any kind, including sulphur dioxide, are employed in the winemaking process (a tiny addition at bottling only). Certainly, such natural viticulture practices are not common in Ocone’s part of Italy. The wines are stellar examples of their variety, especially at their pricepoint.

Musto Carmelitano

Basilicata, Italy
Certified Organic

Elisabetta Musto Carmelitano’s family has been making wine for four generations in the DOCG of Aglianico del Vulture. For much of that time they mainly sold grapes and produced wine in demi-johns. Elisabetta began in this way as well, though in 2006 she started building the current winery and created Azienda Agricola Musto Carmelitano. She directs the winery with help from her father and brother. They have 14 hectares of land – both vineyards and olive groves. The total production of wine, however, is a miniscule 1700 cases! They have vines that are as old as 100 years. They have been farming organically since the beginning and have been certified organic since 2010. Aglianico thrives on volcanic soil. The winery is in Maschito, just south of Monte Vulture, the extinct volcano that provides mineral-rich, volcanic soil for the great wines of Basilicata. For a grape that can have such power and structure, these wines have tremendous grace and finesse as well as a refreshing underlying minerality from the volcanic soils. While relatively new as a winery, they are producing classic, traditionally-made wines that showcase the best of what Basilicata has to offer.

Mendel

Mendoza, Argentina

Proprietor and longtime wine lover, Anabelle Sielecki, diligently tracked down the very best talent Argentina had to offer when seeking a winemaker for her Mendel estate. With charm and perseverance, she enlisted one of Argentina’s most talented veterans, Roberto de la Mota. Roberto, son of legendary winemaker Raul de la Mota, has an impressive winemaking record – both in Argentina and also in Bordeaux - and a lifetime of winemaking education and practice. Together, they choose the best blocks from their ancient ungrafted vineyards, and every artisan winemaking step is rigorously performed.

Tikal

Mendoza, Argentina

Tikal is owned by Ernesto Catena, son of Argentine wine pioneer Nicolas Catena. There are few wine brands that reflect the sensibilities of their owner more than Tikal. A skilled horseman, fashion designer, software developer, and book editor, Ernesto pursues all that gives pleasure in life. This hedonism (in the best sense of the word) shows through in the wines. It is a style meant to provide enormous pleasure rather than provoke contemplation.

Mayu

Elqui Valley, Chile

The Elqui Valley is known for having the least amount of precipitation in the world (actually it is #2 behind Antarctica). It borders the Atacama Desert, the best place in the world for stargazing because there is so little water vapor in the atmosphere.

Here is where the Olivier family started Viña Mayu in 2005 as an independent family winery. The Olivier family first brought fine winemaking to the Elqui Valley with Viña Falernia in 1998. They honor the place and its history with the name of the winery - “Mayu” - which is the Incan word for the Milky Way’s river of stars.

Clos des Fous

Chile

Clos des Fous is about four friends – four crazy guys that have chosen to ignore the “experts” about where to plant vineyards and to trust their own instincts. The team is viticulturist Paco Leyton, winemaker Francois Massoc, terroir hunter Pedro Parra, and “bringer of wisdom” Albert Cussen. At its heart, it is a project dedicated to finding extreme terroirs in Chile and then growing grapes there to craft unique wines. They focus on minimal intervention viticulture and winemaking, with the goal of allowing the terroir to express its natural balance and spirit. They are inspired by the wines of Burgundy, where both Pedro and Francois trained.

Casa Silva

Colchagua Valley, Chile

The Silva family pioneered grape growing in the Colchagua Valley with their first vineyards back in 1892. Their cellar is the oldest one in the valley. Casa Silva is one of Chile's finest and most traditional wine estates. That said, they do not believe in relying on tradition to deliver award-winning wines. They strive to innovate in their vineyards and to find new terroir in the coastal areas and the foothills of the Andes. But they do all of that in the context of their valley, which continues to live a lifestyle that reflects the traditional values of Colchagua.

Luca

Mendoza, Argentina

Laura Catena, daughter of Argentine wine pioneer Nicolás Catena, has a vision of creating a new breed of Argentine wines: small quantities, artisan quality, and true to their individual terroirs. She starts with some of Argentina’s best fruit from low-yield, high elevation vineyards. The end result are her stunning range of Luca wines which are the ultimate expression of rigorous vineyard management, viticultural experimentation, strict irrigation controls, skilled winemaking, and a quest for quality at any cost.

La Posta

Mendoza, Argentina

At La Posta del Vinatero, or “tavern of the grape grower” a handful of growers converge to drink wine and speak passionately about their soils, their vines, and their quest for superior flavors in their grapes. La Posta is made solely from these growers’ special grapes, and these vineyard-designated releases are a salute to their hard work and skill.

Graffito

Mendoza, Argentina

Over the last 15 years, Jimena Lopez developed a very personal set of fine wine-making principles: use great fruit from old vines in a special location, handle all the winemaking steps herself, and put her stamp of approval (a thumbprint) on the label. Jimena's lifelong plan has been to craft a wine using these principles, so when she came across the 7-acre, Cantella vineyard in Lujan de Cuyo farmed entirely by Don Pepe and his family, she finally put her plan into action. This low yield Malbec vineyard planted by his father in 1908 produces small, intense berries that produce a wine not only with deep dark color, like graffito, but also amazing concentration, complexity and structure.

Imada Shuzo brewery was founded in 1868 and is located in the Hiroshima prefecture. Miho Imada represents a highly unusual combination where the brewery owner is also the Toji. Furthermore, Miho is one of the few female Tojis in Japan, which is extremely rare. Adding to Fukucho’s uniqueness, water in this region is very soft in comparison to most sake-brewing regions, which is a major contributor to the rich taste and floral aromatics of Miho’s sake.

Toji Toshio Yokomichi places great importance on his relationship with the farmers who grow his sake rice to make sure it is grown properly and that agricultural chemicals are avoided in the process. The name Yuho has a double meaning; Yuho means “Happy Rice,” but also refers to their city’s supposed numerous UFO sightings.

This is a reflection of current president Mokichi Kumazawa’s strong entrepreneurial skills and international outlook. Using his impressive pedigree, Toji Tetsuro Igarashi has evolved the brewery to produce only premium sake. Located in Kanagawa, this area is known for its beautiful coast and laid-back, surfer vibe.

Boundary Breaks, located on the east side of Seneca Lake, is emerging as one of the Finger Lake's top producers. In 2007, the owner, Bruce Murray, purchased a 120-acre farm that had been in the same family since 1850. Murray’s goal was to develop a vineyard that could yield Finger Lakes Rieslings that were comparable to some of the great Rieslings of Germany and Alsace. He produces wines made with great precision and freshness from all estate vineyards. This new project has become a revelation in the region and helped redefine the potential in the Finger Lakes AVA.

Elke Vineyards

Anderson Valley, CA

One of the original producers in the Polaner Selections portfolio, Elke Vineyards creates elegant, age-worthy Pinot Noir from their family-owned vineyards in California’s premiere Anderson Valley. Regarding vinification, Elke practices what can best be described as natural with as little "manipulation" as possible to allow the nuance of the fruit to shine through. Mary Elke tells it best: “There’s a balance in both life and wine that I try to reflect in the vineyard. My Pinot Noir has complexity and a vibrancy that shows off its terroir in the Anderson Valley. Our Donnelly Creek Vineyard is proof of something I never thought I’d see out here in the rural countryside: location, location, location.”

Foxglove

Hailed by many critics as some of the greatest value wines money can buy, Foxglove is a project of Bob and Jim Varner of Varner Wines. Beginning with their first vintage in 1991, Bob sourced fruit from a variety of places in the Central Coast to create wines that are giving and fruit forward but maintain a fresh, acidic balance. The freshness is highlighted with little or no use of oak, and minimal intervention. The Foxglove wines are perfect everyday wines made with the same care and dedication as Varner wines.

Santa Cruz Mountains, CA

Practicing Organic

In 1980, twin brothers Jim and Bob Varner began their labor of love when they planted Spring Ridge Vineyards in Portola Valley in the northern part of the Santa Cruz Mountain Appellation. They produce wine for their Varner label from here. This hillside vineyard is made up of several separate blocks of vines, each with its own microclimate and soil. Bob and his vineyard crew work in the rows both prior and during each harvest, insuring that meticulous sorting is done on the vine rather than at the winery. In the cellar, the wine is treated as naturally as possible, using indigenous yeast and malolactic bacteria from the vineyard. The Varner's have expanded to now produce terrific value wines from single parcels in Santa Barbara.

Calera

Mt. Harlan, CA

Certified Organic

Calera is one of the greatest benchmarks in the world of California wines. Owner and winemaker Josh Jensen cut his teeth in Burgundy at DRC and Dujac prior to founding Calera in 1975. He planted his first vineyards using selected cuttings from Burgundy; and subsequent vineyards are created from massale selections from the older plots. The estate is Certified Organic, founded on limestone-based soils at 2,000-2,500 ft. elevations on Mt. Harlan, located 25 miles east of Monterey Bay. The winemaking at Calera is non-interventionist: Grapes are all hand-harvested and then gravity-fed into 25% new oak barrels for the whites and open top fermenters for reds. For the Pinot Noirs, the must is vinified with whole-clusters with 100% natural yeasts and minimal racking. The wines are fined and filtered only when necessary. Calera's Central Coast wines are produced with a similar philosophy as the Estate wines, including indigenous yeasts, 100% barrel fermentation and sur-lie aging for Chardonnay, and partial de-stemming on the Pinot.

Idlewild Wines is a dream realized by Sam Bilbro. Sam grew up in a wine making family, and has worked all aspects of the trade from sales, to vineyard work and winemaking, at his father’s winery, Marietta Cellars. He has also worked in the restaurant trade which has broadened his appreciation for wines from outside his native California. Sam started Idlewild as an opportunity to produce wines from numerous places and varietals that inspire and excite him. Whether it’s Dolcetto, Cortese, Carignan or Arneis, the hallmarks of Idlewild Wines are their transparency of place and varietal, combined with charm and elegance. Leo Steen

Sonoma, CA

Leo Hansen was born and raised in Denmark. Having caught the wine bug, Leo came to the United States in 1999 to check out the food and wine scene, and never went back! He migrated to the Sonoma wine country, and worked first as a waiter and sommelier and later as an assistant winemaker at Stuhmuller winery. There he started making a bit of his own wine starting in 2004, a bone dry Chenin Blanc under the name Leo Steen. Steen is both a family name and the South African word for Chenin Blanc. Leo’s Chenin comes from a 30+ year old vineyard in Dry Creek Valley planted in extremely stony soils in an old riverbed. The wine is fermented in stainless steel tanks, and then ages for 3-4 months in neutral barrels, with only about 20-25% malolactic completed.

Habit Wine Company is the brainchild of Actor/Winemaker Jeff Fischer who produced his first vintage in 2008 after years of making wine in his garage in Los Angeles. Fischer, who grew up St. Louis, was exposed to many great wines at a relatively early age. All of the vineyards for Habit are sustainably or organically farmed and the fruit is hand-picked and sorted. In the cellar, fermentations take place using native and indigenous yeasts, with punch downs only by hand. Wines receive minimal handling and racking with extended lees contact up until bottling keep the wines bright, fresh, and clean.

Morgan Twain-Peterson and Chris Cottrell are the brains and energy behind Bedrock which has quickly become one of the most influential new California wineries. Morgan, the son of the famed Joel Peterson of Ravenswood Winery, was raised with wine as part of his life, and has developed an encyclopedic knowledge of vineyards and wine making. The inspiration for many of the Bedrock bottlings are old-vine vineyards planted centuries ago by early immigrants to California. It’s these vineyards that Morgan refers to as the “constellation of viticultural riches that allows Bedrock Wine Co. to craft its diverse range of wines.” Given the scant yields at many of these old-vine sites, production is limited.

Arnot-Roberts Wines is a joint project of school-hood friends Duncan Arnot Meyers and Nathan Lee Roberts. Their goal is to make classically styled wines that express the uniqueness and beauty of their variety and location. Before starting their winery in 2002, they both worked many years at some of California's greatest wineries. The duo has an uncanny ability to ferret out distinctive and often extreme vineyard sites among cooler coastal areas spanning the Santa Cruz Mountains up to Mendocino county. The resulting wines push the limits of what California wines can be. The hard work and dedication paid off as they were named "Winemakers of the Year" in the San Francisco Chronicle for 2012. This tiny gem of a winery focuses on Chardonnay and Pinot Noir from the Santa Cruz Mountains and Mendocino Ridge made in a very classic, old world way. The people behind Trail Marker are husband and wife team, Drew Huffine and Emily Virgil. Trail Marker was born in 2012 when Drew & Emily bought 1 ton of Chardonnay from the remote Manchester Ridge vineyard located at high elevation up in the Mendocino Ridge AVA. The future of California is in the hands of talented winemakers like Drew and Emily who are ferreting out some of the most exciting and unique vineyards and vinifying them in a way that respects and fully exploits these wonderful underlying terroirs. The spirit of the name "Trail Marker" reflects this search for these special places where man and nature meet in a time and place that creates the essence of the vintage and vineyard in each bottle produced.

LOLA was started by Seth Cripe with the idea of making high-quality, honest, value oriented wines from California. Seth had worked previously at some of California’s top wineries, including Caymus and Swanson. What he envisioned with Lola was a line of wines that are made in a cleaner, fresher style than most other California wines in these price categories. He has certainly achieved that! Peirson Meyer is a joint venture between winemaker Robbie Meyer and Alan Peirson, who together spent a total of 25 years helping Peter Michael Winery become one of California’s most renowned producers. In 2001, the project started under the name L’Angevin, but has since evolved into what is now Peirson Meyer to reflect the two families who make the wines. They craft the wines with artisanal Burgundian techniques: natural yeast fermentation, 100% malolactic fermentation, extended aging on lees (15-16 months) in French oak, and unfined/unfiltered bottling.

Kongsgaard

Napa Valley, CA

Practicing Organic

After 20 years of winemaking in the Napa Valley, John Kongsgaard launched his own brand of Chardonnay with the 1996 vintage. As former winemaker for Newton Vineyards, John had already become well known for creating California’s first unfiltered Chardonnay. Since then, he and his wife Maggy, and now their son, Alex, have added Syrah, Cabernet Sauvignon, Albarino and a Viognier-Roussanne blend to their portfolio of wines. The core of their endeavor is the ten acre vineyard planted on a rocky hilltop in southeast Napa Valley which has belonged to the Kongsgaard family since the 1920’s. In the 70’s, John and Maggy planted eight acres to Chardonnay, adding an acre of Roussanne and Viognier in 1995 and the final acre of Cabernet Sauvignon in 2001 (which had its first crop in 2004). The Kongsgaards have also begun harvesting fruit at their property on Atlas Peak in Southern Napa. These holdings are complemented by grapes purchased from some of California’s top grape growers. Larkmead

Napa Valley, CA

Larkmead was one of the earliest founders of the Napa Valley Vintners Association and is proud to be embarking on their third century of crafting 100% Estate grown, 100% Napa Valley wines. This wonderfully diverse site is located on Larkmead Lane in the Northern township of Calistoga. The vineyard is planted primarily to Cabernet Sauvignon, Merlot, and other key Bordeaux varietals Cabernet Franc, Malbec and Petit Verdot. It’s the diversity of the vineyards and what lies below the shallow soils, which is about 300’ of old riverbed gravel that drains like hillside site and provides the wines with their striking minerality and character. Dan Petroski is now in charge of crafting the wines at this historic Napa Valley estate. Extremely Limited.

Outpost

Napa Valley, CA

Practicing Organic

Outpost creates 100% varietal wines (Cabernet, Petite Sirah and Zinfandel) from their hand-cultivated, organically farmed 42-acre estate vineyard. Their guiding principle is to realize the full potential of the land, to create a living history of vintages with immense character and a true sense of place. The unique terroir of the Outpost vineyards - the hard, rocky red soil, high altitude, gentle cooling breezes and sunny western exposure - produces fruit of incredible intensity and richness, with a distinctive spice. Under the expert guidance of winemaker Thomas Brown, Outpost grapes are harvested at optimal ripeness - by hand, at dawn - to preserve the full intensity and distinctive spicy character of the mountain fruit. Wines are neither fined nor filtered, allowing for the full expression of the vintages' potential.

Orin Swift

North Coast, CA & Rousillon, France

The wines of Dave Phinney and Orin-Swift Cellars capture the imagination unlike almost any we know. They are unapologetically full-flavored and intense, yet with a backbone of structure that holds it all in place. Dave is not afraid to mix vineyards, varietals and even appellations to create the desired alchemy for each and every wine. He is ultra strict with his selection, however, and will always de-classify a wine or even skip a release entirely if it is not up to his standards.

Cultivar

Napa, CA

The passion behind Cultivar is to produce Napa Valley Sauvignon Blanc and Cabernet from selected vineyard sources throughout the valley that have depth of character, while still remaining approachable and affordable. They are able to achieve their objective by combining a base of wine crafted from several choice, contracted vineyards along with other small lots of finished wine that are sourced from their boutique neighbors in the Valley. The winery also produces small lots of single-vineyard Napa Cabernets, parts of which find their way into the base Napa blend.

Sean Minor Wines & Point North

California & Oregon

Sean Minor has been in the wine business for 20+ years, starting at Beaulieu Vineyards and then moving to Oregon to run King Estate and Benton Lane wineries. He returned to California to oversee Renwood Winery and started his own label in 2005. The Sean Minor wines are from sought after appellations such as Sonoma Coast and Napa while still representing great value. In 2012 Sean decided to go back to his roots in Oregon to craft a Pinot Noir under the Point North label from this unique and special viticultural region.

Fleur de California & Carneros Ranch

Carneros, CA

With an enthusiasm for the red wines of Burgundy and confidence in California’s potential for producing world-class wines, Francis & Kathy Mahoney have realized a dream: growing fine Burgundian Pinot Noir in the Northern California soil and climate in Carneros. On a modest budget, a small, functional winery was built in 1972 called Carneros Creek. Years later, Francis divested himself from Carneros Creek and started Mahoney Vineyards and Fleur de California. Both projects combined his passion for Burgundy with his extensive knowledge of the Carneros terroir. Together with winemaker Ken Foster, Francis has expanded focus of his various projects to include a new label called Carneros Ranch.

Gemstone

Napa Valley, CA

Practicing Organic

The Gemstone vineyard is comprised of nineteen micro-blocks planted to 5 clones of Cabernet Sauvignon, 2 clones of Merlot, 2 clones of Cabernet Franc, and 1 of Petite Verdot. The plantings were done with a variety of rootstocks carefully matched to the soils. Each micro-block is meticulously farmed, vinified separately, and later blended to create the final wine. Anything that does not make the ruthless first selection is blended into the second wine, Gemstone Estate Red, or sold off in bulk. The result is a wine of the highest quality each year, with a true Gemstone vineyard “signature.”

Thomas Fogarty & Lexington

Santa Cruz Mountains, CA

Practicing Biodynamic

After falling in love with the wines of Burgundy, Dr. Thomas Fogarty, a Stanford Cardiovascular Surgeon and world-renowned inventor, planted what are now the winery estate vineyards starting in 1978. The Winery Estate includes eight micro-vineyards covering 25 acres of ridge top and steep southeast- and east-facing hillsides on the property. In addition to the Winery Estate property, the Fogarty’s planted Gist Ranch Estate atop a ridge at 2300 feet above sea level in 1999. The 100-acre parcel located 17 miles south of the winery and 14.5 miles from the Pacific Ocean that is planted to Bordeaux varietals featured under the Lexington label. Now under the guidance of Tommy Fogarty Jr, and Winemaker Nathan Kandler, Thomas Fogarty Winery is producing wines with layers of complexity, energy and restraint that epitomize the greatness of the Santa Cruz Mountains terroir.

Eyrie

Willamette Valley, OR

Practicing Biodynamic

Eyrie Vineyards is one of the original historic wine estates in Oregon and by all accounts one of the most historic in this country. Eyrie Vineyards was officially founded by David and Diana Lett in 1966 when they planted their vineyards in the Red Hills of Dundee, about 30 miles SW of Portland. The winery was built in nearby McMinville and the first vintage was 1970. Just five years later, in 1975, Eyrie produced the first American Pinot Noir to compete successfully with the renowned Pinot Noirs of Burgundy (Paris,1979; Beaune, 1980). The style at Eyrie is about purity and finesse. The vineyards are farmed biodynamically. Wines are fermented with native yeasts, aged in minimal new wood and bottled without fining and minimal filtration. This gentle treatment creates wines which are very approachable when young but also capable of aging for decades.

Johan Vineyards

Willamette Valley, OR

Certified Biodynamic

Johan Vineyards was founded in 2004 when Norwegian immigrant Dag Johan Sunby came to Oregon's Willamette Valley. His goal was to integrate natural farming methods with a refined, Burgundian-inspired winemaking approach in order to produce the highest quality wines from this terroir. The vineyard is located in the Eola-Amity Hills and is situated in the Van Duzer corridor, a coastal wind funnel that provides a cooling influence to the vines. The winemaker at Johan is Dan Rinke who previously worked at Rhys in California. The wines are made with native fermentations and a limited use of new French oak. Because of the long, cooler growing season at the site they get very good lignification of the stems and therefore utilize a good percentage of whole cluster in the winemaking as well. The resulting wines are precise, with beautiful purity, very savory elements and moderate alcohols.

Holloran & Stafford Hill

Willamette Valley, OR

Practicing Organic & Biodynamic

Located in Oregon’s Willamette Valley, Holloran is a small production winery focusing on Pinot Noir, Chardonnay, and Riesling. Owner Bill Holloran and winemaker Mark Lagasse practice organic and biodynamic farming and a light-handed approach in the cellar. Nearly all the wines are vineyard-designated, and many of the holdings are 20-30 years in age. They are typically bottled unfiltered and unfiltered to preserve their individual character and flavor. And don't miss Holloran's "second label" called "Stafford Hill." Unlike most second wines, it is made from de-classified barrels from Holloran's estate production. An amazing value!

J.K. Carriere

Willamette Valley, OR

Practicing Organic

Jim Prosser established J.K. Carriere in 1999. His incredible diverse background (from finance to the Peace Corps to winemaking stints around the world including Domaine Roumier for the '98 harvest) has given him a worldly approach to winemaking. When Jim started, the predominant style of winemaking in Oregon was slowly becoming bigger and more exuberant. But Jim felt that the great promise of Oregon lied in crafting balanced, tensile Pinot Noir from cooler sites. Not surprisingly, he employs a very hands off approach to winemaking including native yeasts for primary and secondary fermentations and the judicious use of new oak. The resulting wines, from his blended wines all the way to his single vineyard pinots, all show elegance and earthy refinement as well as an ability to age and improve in the bottle.

New York, NY 10011

Founded in Manhattan in 1996 as a little cafe space near Union Square--that's still known simply as 71 Irving Place--Irving Farm Coffee Roasters has since grown to include relationships with coffee producers the world over, a roasting facility in the Hudson Valley, and some of the most well respected wholesale partners in the region. Not long after founders David Elwell and Steve Levin created their dream cafe, they realized that in order to fulfill their desire for a craft-focused, hands-on approach to their love of coffee, they'd simply have to roast it too.

In 1999, they transformed an old dairy farm in the Hudson Valley into a roasting facility. The country roastery and the city cafe meet in our name: Irving Farm. Set at the foot of the Catskills and the Berkshires, our base in the historic Coleman Station district near the town of Millerton is the same region whose lush dairy farms were once the main supplier of milk to New York City in the 1800s.

Nowadays, Irving Farm supplies our carefully sourced, handcrafted coffees to two beautiful cafes in Manhattan, as well as our coffee house in Millerton, keeping the focus on sustainability and building direct relationships with the coffee farmers who grow the beautiful coffees that both the country and the city love so much.
